It is now pretty certain that Genera Sounders and his Coxey legions will be brought to Wichita for trial.

A private telegram to this paper from Topeka last night intimated that they would arrive here Monday in charge of United States Marshal Neely.

The supposition is that no habeas corpus will be demanded but that they will plead guilty in hopes of getting light punishment from Judge Williams. This supposition seemed to be well founded for if their attorneys had not changed their minds about applying for a writ of habens corpus they would have been here yesterday to apply for it as they

Of course there is no means of knowing what Judge Williams will do in the line of meding our punishment to the offenders but he is known to their atterneys as a judge with a good heart and they are confident that if they throw themselves on his means he will probable but themselves on his means he will probable but themselves on confident that if they throw themselves on his mercy he will probably let them off with a nominal fine. Judge Williams, of course, will not express himself on the subject nor give any hint as to what he may do, but it is very likely that in the event that they will plead gnilty and save the government the express of a prosecu-tion he will deal generously with them. In the meantime the local officials of the city, who anticonate the coming of the In the meantime the local officials of the city, who anticipate the coming of the army, are beginning to ask themselves the question, what will be done with them here if they satisfy the judgment of the court and are discharged. Some think that chartering a train and returning them to their starting point in Colorado would be the cheapest and most feasible means of getting rid of them. They are not quite sure, however, that the Covernor of the contraction of the covernor of not quite sure, however, that the Coxey-ites would be willing to return to Col-

While here the army will probably be camped to one of the parks and messed like soldiers. Tents will be brought from Fort Leavenworth for that purpose. By keeping them in this way the cost will be only about 20 cents per day for each man, while if they were accommodated at a boarding house it would be fully three thoses. while if they were accomodated at a bearding touse it would be fully three times that much. They could be kept at the county jail for about 40 cents each according to the contract of the government, but the jail is not large enough to accommodate more than 100 of them. In the event that tents are not brought and the marshal insists on the sheriff keeping them, it is probable that a dining hall and sleeping accommodation will be fixed up in the basement of the county building, or in the main room, and apartments of the common pleas court roun for them.

insane and unable to transact business properly.

It is also intimated by him that if the goods were sold by the piece they would bring more money than Mr. Ludium purchased them for. The result is he desires to have the sale and mortgage set aside. It is not denied that the claim of Mr. Ludium is a just one but Mr. Furnish Ludlum is a just one, but Mr. Furnish thinks it should come in on the same foot-ing with other claims and be settled acing with other ciaims and the state of cordingly.

Dr. McClees, James Howard and Lizzle Hill testified that Bessie Cooper was not mentally capable of transacting business at the time the mortgage was given. Her mind had been wandering then and for some time previous, her special characteristics being that she had no memory whatever. Mrs. Cobb was bound over to the district court by Judge Babb yesterday in the sum of $750, which bond she has not yet given. and is in charge of an officer.

The court room was crowded by a curious multitude who desired to see the "veiled woman" in the case, about whom so much has been said. That mysterion and unfortunate individual did not show up, however, and the crowd was disap-pointed. It was said that she was locked up in the chief's office until she would be required to testify, but at the noon adjournment of court when the office was opened and she was not seen then, the crowd left and many of them did not come back in the afternoon.

& Hatfi-ld defended.

Mrs. Cobb was the main witness in the case, about whom the most interest centered. She testified that the "veiled woman" came to her house on February 19 and remained there till April 19. A baby was born to her on April 5. For her services in the case she received $159 and considered that a very moderate sum. She related how she secured a home for the child in the Hamilton family and all the subsequent proceedings.

She was put under a rigid cross examination by County Attorney Boone, and the energy with which Police Officer Joseph Stover shook his head when ahe answered questions was an indication of the veracity of her statement. Mr. Boone demanded to see the books which contained the records of her business, and she yielded them after some objections which were overruled. Mr. Boone perused the books with all the interest that is aroused by a dime novel, and when he had surveyed the last page he sighed audibly and looked sad. He handed the book to Judge Babb who also examined the pages carefully. He too, looked sad.
